BEFORE YOU GO

Welcome to Your Itinerary

Sarah and James — this is it. Twenty days, five destinations, and a route that was built deliberately: not to show you everything, but to give each place room to actually land.

Singapore opens the trip at a city pace — neighborhoods, hawker food, rooftop cocktails at sunset. Ubud slows things down on purpose, trading itinerary density for temples, coffee, rice terraces, and real stillness. Nusa Penida picks the energy back up with world-class diving and a full day of the island's most iconic coastline. Komodo is the expedition at the center of it all — days that intentionally have no fixed plan, because the reef, the weather, and the crew get to decide those. And AYANA closes the loop with two nights built for nothing but recovery, before a soft landing back through Singapore on the way home.

"Travel should leave you better than it found you."

Every day in the pages that follow is built around one anchor experience — never a checklist. Everything else is intentionally left open: for coffee, for wandering, for the version of the day that shows up once you're actually there.

How to use this document: skim Trip Highlights for the big picture, check the To-Do Checklist for the couple of things still outstanding, then browse Accommodation, Transportation, Excursions, and Restaurants for full detail on each. Daily Itinerary ties it all together, day by day.

Here's to twenty days done right.

Adventure looks different for everyone.

This trip was built around what would actually restore the two of you — not a checklist, not a highlight reel. Neighborhoods over landmarks. One anchor a day over a packed schedule. Five days at sea with no plan at all, on purpose.

Bon voyage, Sarah & James.
